report in SCORES.

24. How long does it take the entity to respond to my complaint?

Generally, the complaint will be responded within a few days after the receipt of your complaint. If your complaint is complex, it may take a little longer.

25. What is the timeline to get my complaint resolved?

Entities are required to submit the action taken report within a reasonable period but not later than 30 days.

26. Why is my complaint pending for a long time?

The complaint may be pending due to various reasons viz., non-receipt of satisfactory reply from the entity, non-receipt of information/ documents sought by the entity / SEBI from the investor, court matter, entity not traceable or vanished companies, etc.

27. When is my complaint treated as disposed of?

On receipt of satisfactory action taken report along with supporting documents, if any, from the entity or the concerned Stock Exchange/ Depository, or if the complainant fails to give complete details/documents required for redressal of his complaint within the prescribed time, the complaint is treated as disposed of.

28. Whether I will receive intimation about disposal of my complaint?

Yes. An email is sent to the complainant's email id available in SCORES.

29. What shall I do if I am not satisfied with the disposal of the complaint?

In case the complainant is not satisfied with the disposal of the complaint, a fresh complaint can be lodged or an email can be sent to the concerned Dealing Officer or escalate the complaint by sending an email to Senior Officers whose email ids are given at the menu "Contact Us". Further, you can initiate appropriate legal proceedings against the entity.

30. What are the limitations in dealing with my complaint?

In certain cases, the entity or company denies wrongdoing, and it remains unclear as to who is wrong or whether any wrongdoing occurred at all. If this happens, SEBI cannot act as a judge or an arbitrator and force the entity or company to resolve your complaint. Further, SEBI cannot act as your personal representative or attorney. But the law allows you to take legal action on your own.

31. Can I take legal action on my own?

Securities and other laws provide important legal rights and remedies if you have suffered wrongdoing. Acting on your own, you can seek to resolve your complaint through the courts, consumer courts, or arbitration.

To take advantage of these laws, you must take legal action promptly or you may lose the right to recover funds. Please note that as per the "law of limitations," there are some time periods within which court proceedings should be initiated.

32. When can SEBI take action for non-resolution of my complaint?

While the entity is directly responsible for redressal of your complaint, SEBI initiates action against recalcitrant entities on the grounds of their failure to redress large number of investor complaints as a whole. For redress of your complaint, you may have to pursue appropriate legal/arbitration remedies.

33. When can I refer my case to arbitration?

If you have an account with the broker or a depository participant (DP), you probably agreed to use only arbitration to settle all disputes with your broker or DP. But even if you did not, you may choose to use arbitration to settle disputes. You generally cannot pursue an issue through arbitration if it is barred by limitation prescribed. When deciding whether to arbitrate—or, if it is a choice, to sue in court—bear in mind that if your broker or DP goes out of business or declares bankruptcy, you might not be able to recover your money—even if the arbitrator or court rules in your favor. However, with certain restriction to the nature of transactions, Stock Exchanges may settle the claim of an investor up to a limit prescribed in the „investor protection fund“ guidelines of the respective Stock Exchange.

Simplified arbitration can be a less costly alternative. You should carefully review the rules governing simplified arbitration before you file a claim. Again, you should always weigh the costs of arbitrating against the likelihood of being able to collect any award in your favor, especially if the brokerage firm has left the industry or gone bankrupt. Firms that stay in business typically pay the arbitration awards levied against them, but defunct firms may not.
